

Hi-Winds excitement filled the beaches at Fisherman's Huts this weekend

Saturday and Sunday again saw exhilarating wind and kite surfing action from the 21st Annual Aruba Hi-Winds. This weekend the breathtaking jumps and stunts that make up the freestyle competitions thrilled the spectators on the shore, and in particular, Caesar from Portugal made audience and commentators gasp while competing for "Prince of the Huts." His windsurfing while lying on his back and steering with his feet was certainly something innovative.

While enjoying the music of local bands "The Islanders" on Saturday and "Sonic Lab" on Sunday, partiers on the shore enjoyed the site of kite surfers silhouetted by the sunset. The weekend festivities and competitions brought record crowds for the last ten years, for an event that welcomed literally hundreds of professional windsurfers from around the world, and thousands of spectators on the shore.

Today saw the final events, with the prizes awarded tonight at a farewell dinner at MooMba Beach Bar and Restaurant.
